PR-Z 151 · La Carrasca Route

Great biking loop through the oldest orchard in Caspe which is irrigated by the historical acequia of Civán. Through country and service roads you can visit some of the most interesting places that are hidden among the traditional agricultural plots, such as the Cruz del Capellán or the monumental holm oak of Plano del Águila.

The route starts from the sports pavilion in Caspe, in Calle Diputación. Take the Camino del Batán and then turn left onto the asphalt road that goes through the huertas de Chané towards the RT house of Las Melenas.

Next to this lodging, the PR-Z 151 leaves the asphalt taking a farm road to the right.

Further on, the route links up with the service road of the acequia of Civán, running parallel to the course of the irrigation channel.

Soon after, it reaches a large pond linked to this old irrigation system, known as Balsa de la Rigüela. The road continues parallel to the acequia, until the junction with the asphalt road of the Capellán, next to some farms. A few meters on the asphalt take you to the well-known Cruz del Capellán (1950).

The route continues along the asphalt until a minor road appears on the left in a sharp and very marked turn. Following this new track, you reach the monumental Carrasca del Plano del Águila. The route continues, a little further on, along a newly asphalted road and ends at the entrance to Caspe on Calle La Fuente.
